Who invented radial drilling?

Equipped by ancient Egyptian architects, we have not known anything so far. This radial drilling technique is not a random invention. Technical progress is an orderly progressive process. To conduct drilling holes, the invention of the drill is not enough, but there must be other appropriate tools. like diamond drill.

Did the khemitians use a drill?

Each mark is a single rotation of the drill, and worked more efficiently than modern drills do. So the Khemitians in fact had superior technology to what we have today. And here we have an example in alabaster, at Abugurab, which is a softer stone than granite, basalt or diorite, but it shows the same even penetration of the drill as seen above.

Did ancient Egyptians create boreholes?

Moreover, very early, 1000 years ago, the Fde Lins Pater described the extremely enlightened bore holes of this 5th Dynasty. Therefore, the idea that these boreholes created by modern people is uncertain. Equipped by ancient Egyptian architects, we have not known anything so far. This radial drilling technique is not a random invention.
